“It’s time for the annual
Honeysuckle Hollow
Sunflower Celebration!”
cheered Poppy Tailfeather.

“What are we going to do
for it this year, Mom and Dad?” asked Poppy’s
little brother, Blaze.

Annie and Redd Tailfeather
own the L'il Blossoms Flower
Shop in Honeysuckle Hollow.

“Well, we’ll be busy in
our shop,” said Annie,
“and I know the Bushytails
will make their famous
blueberry pies again...”

“And of course we’ll go to the parade and picnic as usual,” added Redd.

“But every year we have a special event, Mom and Dad,” Blaze said. “What will it be this year?”

Suddenly Poppy jumped up.
“This year our sunflower
crop is huge! We don’t need them all for the shop.”

She grinned at her family.
“Let’s make a sunflower
maze for everyone
to enjoy!”

Annie and Redd thought
that was a great idea—
and everyone in the community agreed!

Many woodland families
offered to help create
an amazing maze.

The Waterwaggles chewed down the flower stalks to clear pathways through
the maze.

The Woofwinkles helped to make signs from recycled
wood, and the Whiskerellis
and Tippytails painted directions on them.

The Croakalilys made sun hats out of lily pads to keep their Honeysuckle Hollow friends and neighbors safe from the sun.

Meanwhile, Annie and Redd gave out armfuls of flowers from their shop to everyone preparing for the Celebration!

Finally the big day arrived.
“Let’s go, let’s go, let’s go!”
cried Blaze, as the sun peeked up over
the horizon.

Poppy leaped out of bed.
“Yay!” she cried. “Today is
the Sunflower Celebration!”

After a quick breakfast, the Cardinal family headed out to enjoy the annual Sunflower Celebration parade.

Everyone clapped as the homemade floats went by, decorated with many types of flowers—mostly sunflowers!

After the last float paraded past, Blaze and Poppy could hardly
wait to open
the sunflower maze.

All the woodland creatures
lined up, excited to have a turn finding their way to the hidden exit.

By the end of
the morning, everyone
had explored the maze
and was ready for lunch.

“Time for the picnic!”
cried Owen Whooswhoo, swooping in to make
the announcement.

But as the families gathered to eat, Toby Curlicue became worried. He couldn't see his little sister, Olive, anywhere.

“Oh no! Olive is probably lost in the maze—and scared,” he told his friends. “Can you please help me find her?”

The group of children
hurried back to
the sunflower maze.

“Quick!” cried Toby.
“Let’s search up and down
every path for my little sister. Everyone try to go in different directions—OK?”

“No—wait!” Poppy cried out. “I think I have a better idea—a way to find Olive more quickly!”

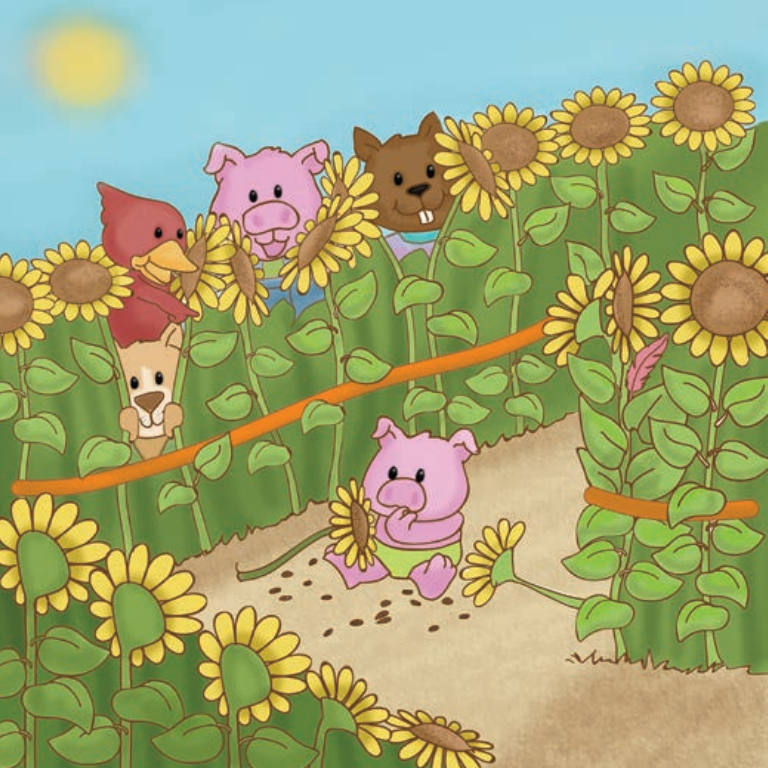

Soon the kids were positioned all around the maze, perched on each other’s shoulders.

They peered over
the tops of the sunflowers,
trying to spot the little piglet.

“Olive! Where are you?”
they called.

Suddenly, Blaze cried out,
“There! There she is!”

Olive wasn't lost at all—
or scared—but was happily
munching away on sunflower seeds!

All the kids laughed in relief.
The Sunflower Celebration
had turned out to be a happy
event for everyone, after all!

Lil' WOODZEEZ

Miles and Meg GrayPaws, and their parents, Luna and Maverick, are happy when a big shipment of berries arrives at their Honeysuckle Hollow General Store as planned. But when it turns out the boxes contain lemons, not berries, and they can't be returned, the GrayPaws family is stumped. What will they do with a store full of lemons?

Then Miles and Meg come up with a terrific idea: a way to help solve both the lemon dilemma and a problem at the Woodland Schoolhouse library!
