Pins & Needles

It was almost time for the Royal Festival Day
in Honeysuckle Hollow.

All the kids hurried to the Pins & Needles Tailor Shop to get their
royal costumes sewn.

The kids love dressing up for this special day that only comes once a year.

They get to enjoy games, activities, and a feast at Kingsley Castle with their friends.

And the Royal Festival
Day always ends
with a super-fun
costume parade.

The Honeysuckle Hollow
child with the best costume gets a prize!

One week later—

“The Royal Festival is now officially open!” announced Knight Miles GrayPaws.

“Hurray!” cried Wizard True McHoot and Princess Kya Kingsberry.

“Yippee!” cheered
Prince Henry Bushytail, Dragon Ripple Bogglesby,
and the other children.

They raced across
the drawbridge, through the castle, and onto the castle grounds.

The kids unrolled a treasure map to find where each of the fun activities were—and the yummy food too!

“After we play and eat, we get to be in the costume parade,” cried Lady Cheddar Nibblekin.

All the kids
battled with pretend
swords and played tug of war. They cheered on the
stilt-walkers, magicians, and acrobats.

They swirled
cotton candy, sipped hot apple cider, and decorated gooseberry tarts—and gingerbread cookies, too.

They went up a ladder,
through a trap door, slid down the slide, and swung on the swing in the
All-Around-the-Castle
Obstacle course.

The kids even played a game of giant chess!

“This is the best
Royal Festival Day ever!”
said Wizard True.

“Hear ye, hear ye,”
announced Knight Miles.

“The Costume Parade
will begin!”

“But our costumes! We’ve left them here, there...and everywhere,” cried Princess Kya. “We’ll be too late.”

“I’ve got an idea,”
said Jester
Chuck Cottonball.

“If we put on whatever costume pieces are closest to us, we’ll be dressed up for the parade in time.”

And so the kids hurried here, there...and everywhere, putting on whatever costume pieces
they found,
whether they matched
or not.

And the parade began!

Not one of the kids ended up wearing their own complete costume, but that made it even more fun.

Queen Katt and King Roy Kingsberry looked surprised at the mixed-up outfits.

“This year’s prize will be for the most original costume,” the queen announced.

“And the winner is...each one of you!” declared the king.

“You may all share
the shiny silver chocolate coins from
our treasure chest,”
said the queen.

What a wonderful way to end a most royal day!
