Liv Skyhopper was all
smiles as her parents,
Flora and Roger, kissed
her goodnight and tucked
her little brother, Skip,
into bed.

They had just shared
some very exciting news!

“Tomorrow will be the first official day of the Junior Pilots Club,” said Roger.

The Skyhopper family owns the Sunny Skies Airport in Honeysuckle Hollow.

They love airplanes!

It had been Liv's idea to start a fun, after-school club so kids could learn about flying.

Lots of her friends had already signed up.

I can't wait until school gets out tomorrow, Liv thought sleepily.

The next day, as the school bell rang, Liv and her best friends, Hazel Healthnuggle
and Nibbles Handydandy, zoomed out the doors
to the airport.

They all ran so fast
they almost FLEW!

The Junior Pilots Club
members gathered at the airport to learn about all the important jobs
at Sunny Skies Airport.

“My dad is a pilot and my mom helps the planes land,”
Liv said proudly.

Nibbles was also excited
that his father, Benjamin, fixes all the airplanes.

“My dad is going to show us how the engine and
landing gear work,”
said Nibbles,
with a big smile.

“Everyone, please take out your pencils and rulers. You’re going to make a flight plan,” Roger said.

“I’m glad we listened in math class last week,” said Pete Whooswhoo, as they busily drew their first flight plan
over Honeysuckle Hollow.

The next day, the club
helped Benjamin Handydandy check
that the planes were
safe for flying.

Liv, Nibbles, Hazel and Pete all put on overalls. They scampered to the airplane.

They each got a chance to hand tools over to Benjamin.

“Wrench please,”
Benjamin requested.

Nibbles quickly handed it over. He was very proud to help his dad do his job.

In the hangar, there was a pretend airplane and a map of Honeysuckle Hollow.

They took turns putting on a pilot's hat and pushing all the buttons and controls.

“This is a lot of hard work, but so much fun!” said Hazel.

“Today’s the day we are allowed to sit in a real airplane!” Liv said happily.

She put on the earphones
and said in a deep voice:

“This is Liv, calling air traffic control. Do you hear me?”

“We hear you loud and clear,” Flora replied. “Roger has some exciting news to tell you!”

“When you’ve finished all your tests, you’ll earn your own pilot’s wings,” said Roger.
“Look for a message in the sky.”

“Yippee!” they all shouted.

Finally the day had arrived.

Liv was the first one to take her test.

She handed in her flight
plan, checked all the buttons
and switches on the plane,
and did everything
she was supposed to do.

One-by-one,
they finished their
tests and high-fived
each other.

The Junior Pilots Club
members were very proud of themselves.

“We all worked so hard...
I really hope we get our wings,” said Liv to her friends.

All the woodland families
had been invited to come to a picnic and see
the big surprise in the sky.

you got your wings!

Roger started the plane,
and then up, up and
away he flew!

Everyone looked up and cheered when they saw what
was written in the sky:

You got your wings!
